Chase Bos

Senior, Washington State University

My name is Chase Bos, and I am planning on graduating Washington State University in May of 2021 with a degree in Construction Management. At Washington State University, I have become involved with many different student clubs and competitions, including the ASC Virtual Design and Construction competition, and the Mechanical Contractors Association of America student competition.

The construction industry has been a family affair all of my life. Both my grandfathers worked for Inland Asphalt Paving in Spokane, one as a superintendent and one as a vice president. They would bring me out to help measure jobs from the time I could walk. As I got older, asphalt did not appeal to me as much as building construction, so naturally, I gravitated towards earning a degree in Construction Management.

The past two summers, I have interned at TW Clark Construction based in Spokane. In relation to Seattle-based general contractors, TW Clark is small and that works well for me. I want to be knowledgeable in all areas of construction, and for me, a smaller general contractor is most beneficial in order to achieve that goal. My long-term goal is to be the best I can be in all areas of life. That might sound generic, but if I can try to be the best in all aspects of life, I will be successful. I love snowboarding and visiting national parks in my spare time!
