Jake Johnson

Senior, Central Washington University

My name is Jake Johnson and I am pursuing my degree in Construction Management at Central Washington University. I am also a member of the AGC student chapter club and on the ASC Competition Team.

Growing up I was always around heavy equipment. By the time I was seven years old I was driving a tractor around my parents' fields. I also grew up racing motocross and was fortunate to have the equipment to work on it. I was running a dozer when I was ten years old and an excavator not too long after that. I have been fascinated by construction my whole life.

Right out of high school I had the opportunity to work for a local land surveying outfit, Berglund Schmidt & Associates out of Hoquiam, WA. After three years on the job, I was able to do jobs on my own and gained a great deal of knowledge about surveying. I left this position to pursue my Construction Management degree at CWU.

I am now on my second internship with Orion Marine Group out of Tacoma, Washington. I worked in Seattle rebuilding Terminal 5 for the Port of Seattle. I hope to continue to work for Orion Marine Group in the future.

After graduation, I hope to be successful and would like to have a lot of experience and knowledge going into the industry I would like to be close to home because I enjoy being around my family and friends. My hobbies include racing motocross, running equipment, and spending time outdoors.
