Tyler Schnebele

Senior, University of Washington

My name is Tyler Schnebele, and I am a part of the Construction Management program at the University of Washington. I am planning on graduating this upcoming spring of 2021 with a BS in Construction Management. I am currently a member of the AGC student chapter and a member of the preconstruction ASC team.

Growing up I have always been interested in construction, as both my dad and uncle work in the industry. Through my family I have had great exposure to the industry and have always been around construction. This led me to pursuing a Construction Management degree at the University of Washington. As a freshman and sophomore, I interned at a relatively new general contractor called Gencap construction specializing in 5 over 2 mixed used buildings.

I began an internship with GLY Construction in June of 2020. I am working in their ISP division which specializes in small projects, TI's, and renovations/remodels. Working in this division I have been able to be exposed to a wide variety of projects from medical buildings to high schools. Long term, I hope to get a position in upper management or start my own smaller construction company or owner's rep firm. In my free time I enjoy hiking, fishing, skiing, running, working out, and being around family and friends.
